

Authors

Benson Kristina is a PhD candidate on the Islamic Studies Program at the University of California (Los Angeles, USA), where her academic interests include Islam in diaspora, law, legal pluralism and gender. She currently works as the Chief Articles Editor for the UCLA's Journal of Near Eastern and Islamic Law.

Egorov Alexander is a doctor of philosophic sciences, professor, pro-rector for Research and Investment at the Smolensk State University (Smolensk, Russia). His interests are in the areas of epistemology and philosophy of science, social studies and philosophy of culture (art, education, sport).

Folami Olakunle Michael is a PhD student affiliated with the Transitional Justice Institute, University of Ulster (Northern Ireland, United Kingdom). He is a lecturer at the Department of Sociology in the Adekunle Ajasin University (Akungba Akoko, Ondo State, Nigeria). His research interests include transitional justice, gender, security reform, social stratification and development.

Folami Olubimpe Adejoke is a master's degree student. Her research interests focus on forensic, conflict and peace studies. She currently works at the Adekunle Ajasin University (Akungba Akoko, Ondo State, Nigeria).

Giovanni Di Elisabetta is an assistant professor of anthropology, a senior lecturer in anthropology at the Faculty of Education, University of Palermo (Palermo, Italy). Her academic interests are religious anthropology (patronage dynamics, sense of the sacred), Gypsies studies and marginality, urban anthropology, as well as zooanthropology.

Griber Julia is a PhD, lecturer, dean of the Faculty of Foreign Languages at the Smolensk State University (Smolensk, Russia). Her academic interests focus on the epistemology of art, social studies of architecture, urban coloristics and structured coloristic analysis of urban space design.

Hołda Renata is an anthropologist and a historian of culture, PhD, lecturer of the Institute of Regional Studies at the Jagiellonian University (Cracow, Poland). Her research interests center on political anthropology.

Kabitskiy Mikhail is an anthropologist, a PhD in history, docent at the History Faculty of the Moscow State University and the University Centre for Social Anthropology of the Russian State Humanitarian University (Moscow, Russia). His research interests are ethnology and social anthropology of Southern Europe, history of ethnology and anthropology, ethnic and national identity, ethnolinguistics, as well as ethnic history.

Kutyła Małgorzata is a PhD, she works at the Jesuit University Ignatianum (Cracow, Poland). Her interests focus mainly on the changes (cultural, demographic) that are taking place in contemporary societies.

Liu Jufen is a PhD, she works at the Institute of Reproductive and Child Health, Ministry of Health Key Laboratory of Reproductive Health, Peking University (Beijing, China). Her academic interests are demography, epidemiology and public health.

- Mainul Islam Mohammad is a PhD in demography-population health, he works at the Department of Population Sciences, University of Dhaka (Dhaka, Bangladesh). His academic interests are social demography, sociology of health and illness, population health, development and environmental studies.
- Makarov Victor is a postgraduate at the Department of Common History, Herzen University (Saint-Petersburg, Russia). His interests are mainly in the British history, Chinese history, intellectual history and history of Russia.
- Mielicka-Pawłowska Halina is a professor extraordinarius at the Jan Kochanowski University (Kielce, Poland). She is a sociologist of religion interested in postmodern religiosity, the ritual and consequential dimension.
- Musiyezdov Oleksiy, a PhD in sociology, is an associate professor at the Karamzin Kharkiv National University, Department of Sociology, and an associate professor of the Chair of Sociology (Kharkiv, Ukraine). His academic interests are in the areas of cultural studies, urban studies and identity studies.
- Poghosyan Alina is a researcher at the Institute of Archaeology and Ethnography of the Armenian National Academy of Sciences (Yerevan, Armenia). Her main research interests include migration issues, particularly transnationalism and transculturalism, integration and adaptation as well as migration policies.
- Sobczak-Pękala Bożena is a PhD, she is a lecturer at the Institute of Philosophy and Sociology, at the Pedagogical University of Cracow (Cracow, Poland). Her academic interests are international relations (especially between France and USA), intercultural relations, media and mass communication.
- Tadevosyan Aghasi is a professor of social anthropology at the Yerevan State University (Yerevan, Armenia). The scope of his research interests includes issues of everyday life, migration, minorities and the socio-cultural aspects of transition in post-Soviet countries. He is an author of 11 monographs and more than 50 articles.
- Timoszenkov Sergey is a postgraduate student of the Smolensk State University (Smolensk, Russia). His academic interests focus mainly on social studies and philosophy of culture, transformational process on the border territories of Russia and Belarus.
- Tlostanova Madina is a professor of philosophy at the Peoples' Friendship University of Russia (Saint-Petersburg, Russia). Her scientific interests focus in particular, on philosophy of multiculturalism and transculturation, border and gender epistemologies. She is an author of over 160 articles, four books in Russian and three in English.